Faculty Fellows Program
Call for Faculty Proposals (CFP)

Ball State's Global Health Institute (GHI) is soliciting applications to its Faculty Fellow Program. This is a unique opportunity for faculty members with research interests in the area of health. Faculty Fellows are awarded $2,500 per semester. Faculty fellows are expected to attend weekly GHI meetings and submit an external research proposal, with direct costs of at least $50,000, before the beginning of the next academic year. Applications responding to a specific RFP or solicitation are preferred.

Faculty Fellow Funding and Details

Two faculty fellow awards are available for the 2012-2013 academic year. Funds may be allocated for one of the following: a salary stipend or research funds (professional development). A third option, a course buyout, is available for the spring semester of 2013 pending department chairperson approval. Proposals may not include co-investigators or external partners.

Application Details

Anyone intending to apply should contact the program director, Kerry Anne McGeary, GHI Director, at kmcgeary@bsu.edu or 765-285-4440 prior to applying to the Faculty Fellows Program.

All applicants must communicate with their department chairperson and dean regarding their intent to apply. Documentation of this communication should be provided with the application. If the applicant intends to use the award to fund a course buyout in the spring semester of 2013, the application must include a letter of support from his/her department chairperson.

Please complete the attached application and submit it via e-mail to globalhealth@bsu.edu.

Applications are due by 5:00 pm on Monday, September 17, 2012.

Awardees will be announced by Monday, September 24, 2012.
