RE: Publishing of Abstracts of Dissertations and Copyrighting of Dissertations

Universities in the United States, including Ball State University, use the services of ProQuest Information and Learning to publish abstracts of dissertations in Dissertation Abstracts and to make available for sale copies of your dissertation in digital, microform, electronic, and/or hard copy. The purpose of this letter if to inform you that when you submit your dissertation to PQIL and have your abstract published in Dissertation Abstracts, you may retain the option of restricting distribution of the entire dissertation. PQIL will publish your abstract but, at your request, will withhold distribution of copies of your dissertation in any or all formats until you notify PQIL otherwise.

Allowing PQIL to make available for sale of your dissertation does not prevent you from contracting with another publisher. You would need to inform potential publishers that you have given PQIL the non-exclusive rights to your dissertation and abide by any policies they have. I recommend that you consult with your departmental adviser and/or dissertation chairperson before making any decisions about the above.

In addition, if you wish to use PQIL's copyright service, please be aware that one copy of your dissertation will be deposited in the Library of Congress Copyright Office and will be available for circulation.

For your convenience, I have attached a form to fill out to let the Graduate School know your decision on the sale of your dissertation and use of the copyright option. If you desire to withhold the distribution of your dissertation, please complete the attached form and return it with the PQIL "Doctoral Dissertation Agreement Form" at the time you submit the final copy of the dissertation to the Graduate School. Without this form PQIL will be given non-exclusive rights to reproduce and distribute your manuscript in whole or in part.

Please feel free to contact the Graduate School at 765-285-1291 if you should have any questions about the above.
