Greetings musicians! Fall Semester is in full swing, with a few changes and a lot of new materials in the Music Collection. We now have a new book shelf for you to peruse the latest titles. New scores include music by women and the latest published works of currently active composers. Listening assignments now stream through Naxos Music Library or Mediasite, so we have opened up the listening room for more individual study.

End of an Era

Goodbye, Listening System

When the Music Listening Center opened, its streaming audio system was cutting-edge technology. Course reserves and library recordings streamed through a computerized network. From a bank of audio equipment behind the circulation desk, students in carrels in a quiet area of the library could listen to their assignments. With the incorporation of online technology, most assigned listening is now on Mediasite or Naxos Music Library.

The old carrel room now sports two study tables and two carrels with CD players. CDs that used to be streamed to carrels are now available for short-term check-out in the library.

Featured Scores

Brahms is one of the rare composers who edited his own music for performers of lesser accomplishment. His Waltzes, Op. 39, are available in Urtext editions of both the original and “easy” versions:

M 32 .B73 op. 39 K6 2011
M 32 .B73 op. 39 K61 2011

Fritz Kreisler is another! Volume 5 of The Fritz Kreisler Collection includes easy arrangements by the composer and virtuoso:

15 Art Songs by British Composers is a Boosey & Hawkes collection that comes in both high and low voice, each with an enhanced CD of the piano part. For many of our students, songs in English are foreign-language songs so this collection is a welcome addition to the art song repertoire. Composers include Benjamin Britten, Henry Purcell, Roger Quilter and Rebecca Clarke. And in what I hope will be a new trend: each song indicates whether it is in the original key, and if not, it indicates what the original key is. It is available in high and low editions.

Gustavo Dudamel and the youthful Simón Bolívar Symphony Orchestra of Venezuela take on the Shakespearean works of Tchaikovsky: Hamlet, The Tempest, and Romeo and Juliet Compact Disc 21111

Violinist Daniel Hope performs works composed for 19th Century violin virtuoso Joseph Joachim on The Romantic Violinist. Compact Disc 21109

Two performances of Rachmaninov’s Vespers were released on the same day. One is by a Russian choir, one by an English choir. You can’t beat the Russians for performing Russian music, but you can’t beat the English for performing choral music. What could I do? I ordered both! Music By Women

We have expanded our selection of performance scores of music composed by women. Check out (and perform!) music by:

Grazyna Bacewicz
Amy (Mrs. H.H.A.) Beach
Lili Boulanger
Cecile Chaminade
Rebecca Clarke
Sofia Gubaidulina
Fanny Hensel (nee Mendelssohn)
Clara Schuman

Featured Book

Exploring Jazz Violin by Chris Haigh takes the classically trained violinist through a rigorous jazz regimen that includes diatonic and modal theory, improvisation, and playing in the style of the great jazz violinists such as Joe Venuti, Jean-Luc Ponty, and of course Stephane Grappelli. An accompanying CD includes solo and backing tracks.

Grove Opera

New on Oxford Music Online

When the Grove Encyclopedia of Opera was added to the Grove Music Online (via Oxford Music Online), some of the unique indexing for the print version was lost. That has now been rectified, and you can now search by singer, by character, and even by aria incipit (beginning notes).
