A neighborhood pedestrian path lined with fruit trees, grape vines, berry bushes, and herbs, the GroveWay provides a physical and cultural connection between East Central, Downtown, and the Cardinal Greenway...as well as a fun time for families and visitors.

The East Central neighborhood is shadowed by what it used to be. One of the oldest neighborhoods in Muncie, the district is known for the beautiful historic homes of former factory and business owners. Near the middle of the century, it was known as a proud and cohesive neighborhood—a place where factory owners and factory workers lived on the same block. Today, the area is riddled with blight and abandonment—looking to its past for inspiration, but looking to its future with hope.
