BENEFITS OF COUNSELING

Defining an Incident as Sexual Assault
Many victims of sexual assault are left feeling confused and unsure of what actually happened, especially if the perpetrator is an acquaintance or dating partner. Counseling offers an opportunity to review the incident in question and become clearer about thoughts and feelings about the event.

Making Decisions about Legal and Judicial Options
Very often, victims feel unsure about how to proceed in terms of reporting the assault to police, pressing criminal charges, or initiating campus judicial proceedings. In counseling, individuals can discuss various options and arrive at a decision that will most likely promote healing and resolution.

Enhancing Academic and Social Functioning
Sexual assault is a traumatic experience that disrupts the victim's life and may temporarily make it difficult to function at her or his usual level. Counseling can help the survivor develop effective coping strategies that make it more possible to pursue school, work, and social relationships during the period of recovery.

Minimizing Negative Effects of the Assault
Victims of sexual assault typically experience a wide range of feelings, including anger, depression, guilt, and fear. In addition, there may be physical symptoms, difficulties with memory and concentration, nightmares or "flashbacks" of the assault, and disturbances in interpersonal relationships. Generally, counseling provides assistance with "working through" the trauma of sexual assault, with the goal of minimizing negative psychological and social effects so that the survivor can move on with her or his life.
RECOVERY PROCESS...

First and foremost, remember that you are a survivor and the incident was not your fault. Recognize that healing takes time and give yourself the time you need to recover. It’s ok if you need to do the following to help yourself heal.

Recovery tips immediately after the incident:
- Show your emotions
- Leave your lights on
- Rearrange your room or apartment OR change to a completely different room/apt.
- Change your class schedule or withdrawal from a few classes
- Take a few days off from work

Ongoing recovery tips:
- Keep a journal. This is a wonderful way, not only to help process your thoughts but when you look back you can see patterns that need to be changed. It can also show you how much healing you have done.
- Sometimes we can't take 5 minutes but we can take 1 minute. Use it as a dedication to ourselves. As long as we take even 30 seconds it can be enough to help recharge ourselves.
- Listen to music
- Watch a sunset or sunrise
- Run
- Climb
- Help someone else. Local soup kitchens, hospitals, churches, schools, and senior citizens centers are always seeking for volunteers.
- Take a road trip with a friend or try something new, like dance lessons.
- Do something you've always wanted to do, but haven't gotten around to yet.
- Exercise-Research has proven that physical exertion can release endorphins that will help alleviate depression.

These tips are to help you heal, or just learn to feel stronger each day.
No one suggestion will work for every person.

Do not feel as though you must be healed NOW! Give yourself time!
What is PTSD? It is a common emotional and psychological reaction to trauma (a painful, shocking, experience such as rape, war, natural disaster) that is outside of a person's normal life experiences.

Why should I learn about PTSD? Because you or someone you know may experience trauma at some time in your life! Learning about PTSD can help you cope with trauma, and/or help others.

Who is likely to suffer from PTSD? Anyone who experiences a traumatic event. PTSD can affect survivors of war, violent attacks, rape, car or plane accidents, and natural disasters. People who witness these events can also be affected.

Symptoms of PTSD may include: recurrent memories, flashbacks of the trauma, nightmares, insomnia, and/or lack of interest in family, friends, or hobbies. The person may suffer from depression. He/she may also suffer from survivor guilt, experience overwhelming emotions, and be irritable or jumpy.

Recovery Takes Time
Survivors recover in stages. They may start with one stage, go to another, and go back. Each person processes the event his or her own way.
Here are some stages a survivor may go through:

1. Denial that the incident had any effect on their lives.
2. Fear it will happen again.
3. Sadness because of a loss of their ability to trust in people or places.
4. Anger at what happened.
5. Anxiety over the nightmares or flashbacks that may intrude on the life of the survivor.
6. Feeling as if a part of them died during the incident.

Survivors are not to blame for the crime committed against them by another person.
What You Should Know
If you have been sexually assaulted, this fact-sheet will give you information that will help you make a decision about being tested for HIV/AIDS.

Your Concerns about AIDS
When someone has been sexually assaulted, it is not unusual for them to worry that they will get AIDS from the person who assaulted them. This fear is very real and painful.

It is important for you to know that the risk of getting HIV from the person who assaulted you is low.

In order to make sure that your fears and concerns about HIV and AIDS can be dealt with, you need to have information about being tested for HIV. You need to know what to expect, where to go and, most of all, you need to know that the choice to be tested is yours.

What is HIV/AIDS?
Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) is the virus that causes AIDS. This virus attacks and damages our body’s immune and nervous system and makes it difficult for us to fight off diseases and infections. Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is the disease that often results when someone is infected with HIV. AIDS is a very serious disease and this is why most people are worried about getting HIV/AIDS if they have been sexually assaulted.

Being Tested for HIV
If you are infected with HIV, your body will begin to produce antibodies that try to fight off the virus. The HIV test measures whether or not you have these antibodies in your blood. In almost all cases, it takes 14 weeks after infection for your body to begin to produce enough of these antibodies to show up in a blood test. For that reason, if you are tested for HIV right after an assault, the results will show only whether or not you were HIV positive before the assault. This is called a “baseline test”.

In order to find out if you have been infected as a result of the assault, you must be re-tested four months later. When you are tested for HIV/AIDS, you give a blood sample in the same way that you provide blood samples for other tests.

Anonymous Testing
You can be tested for HIV at the Ball State University Health Center with an appointment, by calling 765-285-3775.

You can make the appointment without providing your name or any other identifying information - this is called anonymous testing.

The results remain completely confidential.

Student Rights Regarding Sexual Harassment

Sexual Harassment
Sexual harassment is unwelcome conduct of sexual nature—from sexual advances and requests for sexual favors to other verbal, visual (communicated in writing or electronically), and physical sexual behavior. The law protects you whether the unwanted behavior is committed on or off campus. Examples of conduct that may constitute sexual harassment include but are not limited to:

- Requests, propositions, or pressure for sexual favors
- Unwelcome physical contact such as hugging, rubbing, touching, patting, pinching or brushing up against you without your consent
- Conduct that is criminal in nature, such as rape and sexual assault

Sexual harassment creates a hostile environment that interferes with or limits your ability to participate in or benefit from university programming or activities. A hostile environment may emerge after a series of incidents or arise after a single, isolated incident.

Title IX
In all instances and to the extent possible, the University will protect the privacy of all parties to a report of sexual misconduct or sexual assault. That said, under federal law, campus officials (with the exception of those listed under Confidential Resources: counselors at the Ball State Counseling Center, Student Health Center, Office of Victims Services, or off-campus rape crisis resources, such as A Better Way, the IU Ball Memorial Hospital Emergency Room, other health providers, or pastoral counselors) who receive a report of sexual misconduct, whether from the student involved or a third party, must share that information with the appropriate University authorities for investigation and follow-up.

Students who believe they have experienced sexual harassment, including sexual violence, are encouraged to come forward to receive assistance (but are not required— it is up to the Victim if s/he wants to report). But regardless of whether the harassed student files a complaint or otherwise requests assistance, university employees who know about possible harassment must take appropriate steps to report the information to Katie Slabaugh, Associate Dean of Students/Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs.

Circumstances requiring a campus security authority (csa) to report sexual harassment that occurs on or off campus include but are not limited to:

- A student sharing information about an incident directly with a faculty/staff/csa (even if he or she requests their confidence)
- A csa observes a student, employee, or other representative of the university sexually harassing a student
- A third party shares information with a csa about an incident, that csa must report it
IF A STUDENT FILES A COMPLAINT

Student-on-student sexual harassment (including sexual violence) and sexual harassment directed toward a student by a university employee or other representative of the university violate Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Ball State University will not tolerate sexual harassment of students and will respond in a suitable manner to every complaint. Katie Slabaugh, Associate Dean of Students/Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs, oversees the university’s efforts to comply with Title IX. The Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs will respond to all complaints in a prompt, thorough, and impartial manner.

When a student comes forward with a complaint, the Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs will:

- Address your complaint in a suitable manner
- Explain the university grievance procedures
- Connect you with emotional and physical support resources on campus
- Protect you from retaliation

During business hours, persons wishing to report sexual harassment, including sexual misconduct, by a student may also contact Katie Slabaugh, Associate Dean of Students/Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs or her (Assistant) at (765) 285-1545. Incidents of sexual misconduct involving students that are reported to Ball State Police will also be referred to the Assistant for follow-up and administrative investigation (Even if the student did not contact Katie Slabaugh to report). Similarly, the Assistant or his/her designee will follow-up where appropriate in those instances where the university has a report of an incident of sexual assault or misconduct that has been reported to another law enforcement agency.

The administrative investigation conducted by the Associate Dean of Students/Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs or her designee is separate from any criminal investigation. Additionally, or if the victim does not wish to prosecute the offender or report the offense to the police, she/he can still file a report with the Associate Dean of Students/Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs provided the offender is a student. An administrative investigation will be initiated under procedures outlined in the Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities.

Students Please Note:

A student has the option and right to report to Law Enforcement; they also have the right and option to not file a police report.

A student also has the option and right to file a complaint on campus, to pursue the Campus Judicial Process (which is separate from the Criminal Justice System) or not to.

A student has the right and option to report to both Law Enforcement & the Campus Judicial System, or neither, or just one of them. It is up to the student victim.
A student is not required to participate in the Title IX investigation done by the Associate Dean of Students/Title IX Coordinator for Student Affairs or her designee. Should a student not wish to participate, they may tell the investigator upon being contacted, that they do not wish to participate in an investigation.
