Community and Economic Development Glossary of Terms

Basic Employment

Associated with business activities that provide services primarily outside the area via the sale of goods and services, but whose revenue is directed to the local area in the form of wages and payments to local suppliers.

Business Attraction or Recruitment

Marketing or other activities designed to persuade businesses to choose a community as a location.

Business Retention and Expansion (R&E)

Supporting and assisting local businesses with an expansion or helping them to overcome an obstacle that prevents them from remaining competitive, usually done through company visits and/or surveys.

Capital Costs

The costs a business pays for major physical improvements, such as buildings, equipment, or machinery.

Commission

A group of citizens organized under statute to perform certain tasks or duties in the public interest. An economic development commission is a good example of citizens who have been appointed to the task of developing strategies to improve the local economic base.

Community Profile

Information about a community including taxes, transportation networks, health and recreation facilities, labor rates and skill levels, market proximity, available sites and industrial parks, nearest major cities, companies already doing business in the community, utilities, government organizations, and educational facilities, that is usually presented in or with a brochure to an attraction prospect.

Development Authority

An independent agency of local government that possesses certain powers beyond those of city government. A public housing authority is a good example because it has the ability to issue special bonds for public housing.

Economic Base

The major business activities that create and bring wealth into a community (e.g. manufacturing services, tourism, etc.)

Eminent Domain

The authority of a government to take, or to authorize the taking of, private property for public use, almost always with adequate compensation to the owner.

Entrepreneurship

Starting a business, taking a product or service from idea stage to market.

Guaranteed loan

A loan that is guaranteed partly or fully for the benefit of protecting a lender against possible losses.

Industrial park

A tract of land that is divided and developed according to a plan for the location or expansion of businesses and industries, with the basic infrastructure installed before the sites are sold.

Infrastructure

The physical structure that supports and sustains communities and economic development (e.g. roads, waste treatment systems, utility systems, railroads, telecommunications).

Insured loan

A loan insured by a governmental agency or a private mortgage insurance company.

Interest subsidy

A grant designed to lower the interest costs of borrowing. The subsidy either goes directly to the borrower or is paid on his or her behalf.

Land-use planning

Planning for proper use of land, taking into account such factors as transportation and location of business, industry, and housing.

Leveraging

A means of multiplying the availability of funds for economic development or community development programs by using one pot of money as a match or lever to access a larger amount of money.

Option to buy

An arrangement to permit one to buy or sell something within a specified period of time, usually according to a written agreement.

Ordinance

A rule or law established by the local governing body to control actions of citizens and the effects of their activities on others.

Public works

Facilities constructed for public use and enjoyment with public funds, such as ramps, highways, sewers, in contrast to maintenance activities, such as street cleaning and painting school buildings.

Quasi-public agency

Usually a non-profit corporation with a privately appointed board of directors whose purpose is to assist governmental agencies and the private sector to improve the general living standards of citizens. The majority of funds for such activities come from public agencies.

Revolving loan fund

Pool of local and/or state monies loaned to businesses at low interest rates for expansion and retention. The interest generated from the loans goes back into the pool to create additional funds to be loaned in the future.

Small business incubator

A facility that offers low rent and inexpensive shared business services to start up businesses for a designated period of time. Usually associated with an indigenous growth strategy pursued by a community

Tax abatement

A reduction in property taxes for a specific property over a certain period of time.(Also called tax phase In.)

Tax incentives

Tax reductions, abatements, credits, and programs designed to persuade companies to locate or expand in a state or community.

Technical assistance

Providing information, data, and know-how in establishing, implementing, and evaluating economic development initiatives and activities.

Value added

Adding market value (monetary) to raw materials or a product by processing, handling, labeling, packaging, transporting, etc.

Workforce development

Public and private education and training programs designed to increase skills, education, abilities, and knowledge of members of the workforce.

(317) 822-6167
<http://www.bsu.edu/capic>

CAP:IC is part of a diverse family of design centers nationwide. Some are associated with universities while others are independent non-profit organizations. Design centers take on a wide array of purposes. Some focus primarily on advocacy and community-building. Others do actual design and planning that result in construction documents and plans that are built. CAP:IC falls

765-285-2773

www.bsu.edu/bbc

somewhere in the middle with a mix of advocacy, community building, and facilitating conceptual design and planning.

Plastics Research and Education Center

(765) 285-5695

<http://www.bsu.edu/plastics>

The plastics center uses the resources of Ball State University to address the needs of the plastics industry in Indiana. The vision is to have the targeted region recognized as a global leader in the plastics industry. The mission is to provide strategies and support implementation of those strategies in order to create a substantial and sustainable advantage for plastics companies.

Business Engagement Center

(812) 237-2536

<http://www.indstate.edu/businessengagement/>

Engaging with business to provide university commercialization services and experimental learning opportunities.

Center for Public Support & Community Engagement

(812) 237-2334

<http://www.indstate.edu/publicservice/>

The Center for Community Engagement was established to serve as a "front door" to Indiana State University. Our purpose is to enhance the quality of life in the Wabash Valley and State of Indiana by providing opportunities for nonprofit and profit organizations, governmental agencies, and citizens to access the service and programs of the University. We also provide individual support for students, staff, and faculty who are interested in community engagement projects.

(812) 855-5507 -or- (317) 274-2979

<http://www.ibrc.indiana.edu>

www.bsu.edu/bbc

Established in 1925, the Indiana Business Research Center is an integral unit in the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University. The IBRC provides and interprets the economic information needed by the state's business, government and nonprofit organizations, as well as users of such information throughout the nation.

The IBRC maintains databases on numerous topics such as income, employment, taxes, sectors of the economy, education, demographics and a host of other economic indicators for the nation, the state and local areas. In addition, the Center conducts original research to generate needed information when existing data are not available or sufficient.

The many web sites developed and maintained by the IBRC include:

- IBRC Trends & Analysis (www.ibrc.indiana.edu)
- STATS Indiana (www.stats.indiana.edu)
- Census 2000 in Indiana (www.census.indiana.edu)
- National Clearinghouse for the State Data Center Program, a network of 1,500 agencies nationwide (www.sdcbidc.iupui.edu)

Cooperative Extension Service

(765) 494-7273

<http://www.extension.purdue.edu/ecd/>

Four programs exist within the umbrella of the Cooperative Extension Service, including:

- Agriculture and Natural Resources Program
Providing lifelong education, training, and technical assistance to people and businesses with agricultural and natural resource related interests.
- Leadership and Community Development
- Consumer and Family Sciences
Informal education program that increases knowledge, influences attitudes, teaches skills, and inspired aspirations.
- 4-H and Youth
4-H incorporates fun educational opportunities, development of leadership skills, and adult training with hands-on, age appropriate, university-based activities.

Indiana Manufacturing Extension Partnership Center

(317) 275-6810 or (800) 877-5182

<http://www.purdue.edu/TAP/MEP>

Formerly known as the Indiana Business Modernization and Technology Corporation (BMT), the MEP center is now under the direction of Purdue University's Technical Assistance Program (TAP). Its aim is to provide Indiana manufacturers with the resources they need to adapt to the changing technological requirements in the manufacturing sector.

Technical Assistance Program (TAP)

(765) 494-9189

<http://www.tap.purdue.edu/>

TAP is designed to help Indiana business, industry, and government use the resources of Purdue University in order to develop and implement new technologies for the economic benefit of clients and the state.

Internet Data and Information Sources

FEDERAL AND STATE DATA SOURCES

Access Indiana

<http://www.ai.org>

The official Web address of the State of Indiana, this site contains information on everything! Grants access to selected cities and towns as well as to agencies and organizations

Bureau of Economic Analysis

<http://www.bea.gov>

Operated by the U.S. Department of Commerce, this site contains information on Gross State Products by industry as well as regional data such as MSA wage information.

Economic Development Administration

<http://www.eda.gov>

Operated by the U.S. Department of Commerce, this site contains EDA grant information and reports on a variety of EDA topics.

FedWorld

<http://www.fedworld.gov>

Government data clearinghouse operated by the US Department of Commerce. Searchable document formats containing otherwise hard to obtain information.

GovStats at Oregon State University

<http://govstats.library.oregonstate.edu/>

Government information sharing project formerly hosted by Oregon State University. This link will now direct you to various locations for the same information. Contains a myriad of federal information as well as access to the US Census/Ag Census, and current County Business Patterns.

Indiana Department of Education (IDEAnet)

<http://ideanet.doe.state.in.us>

Contains information about general education programs, curriculum development, school district information, ISTEP/SAT scores, teacher salaries, and staff information.

Indiana Department of Workforce Development

<http://www.in.gov/dwd>

Contains information on state workforce programs as well as current employment information by county.
