

Ball State University and the School of Physical Education, Sport and Exercise Science extend this invitation to parents, guardians, teachers, & administrators in Delaware County.

Physical Education Redefined “Past, Present, & Possibilities”

Physical education’s role in the public school curriculum has been widely misunderstood and under-appreciated. National education reform has shifted education focus and resource allocation.

Where does physical education fit?

Young professionals from the Ball State Physical Education Pedagogy Program will present information and discussion sessions for all individuals interested and invested in education. Pedagogy students will highlight the critical importance of physical education for all, examining physical education from its roots, to current understanding and practice and what the future may hold for this critically important education discipline.
