Course Reserve Service

Course Reserves, which is now located at the main circulation desk, can make your assignments available to your students online. Book chapters, journal articles, syllabi, exams, lectures, notes, and pictures can be scanned for 24/7 online access. Personal copies of books and library materials can also be placed on reserve and made available Sunday–Saturday for check out. Circulation periods available are: 2 hours, 4 hours, 24 hours, 3 day and 7 days.

DVD and VHS videos, other non-book materials, as well as materials related to K-12 textbooks, curriculum materials, and youth books can be placed on reserve in Educational Resources Collections. Your instruction sessions will be enhanced by having more time for discussion if films can be viewed outside of class. Placing the material on reserve ensures that it will be available for all of your students in a timely manner. Otherwise the title could be checked out for days making it difficult for everyone to view the material.

To find out more about these services, log onto <http://www.bsu.edu/library/collections/coursereserves/coursetools/> or call 765-285-3331 to speak to Jan Vance, Course Reserve Supervisor or contact Lora Jones, Booking/Reserves Assistant, in Educational Resources Collections at 765-285-4368.

MultiSearch

MultiSearch has been implemented for simultaneously searching a wide variety of databases available through the University Libraries, including CardCat. Database choices can be limited by subject area, or all selected databases can be searched at once. Results are presented together, and a clustering feature enables narrowing in on specific subjects and terms when viewing search results. In addition MultiLink is provided for locating the full text of article citations found in the databases when available. When full text is not available, MultiLink provides additional searching options, such as print versions via CardCat or other area libraries, or other possible methods of viewing electronic full text, such as Interlibrary Loan.

Freedom to Read

Members of the American Library Association Freedom to Read Foundation recently celebrated its 40th anniversary and paid tribute to its founder, Judith Krug, who died this past April. Mrs. Krug was credited with "being the singular force behind both the foundation and the ALA Office for Intellectual Freedom" for the past 40 years, significantly influencing "the course of constitutional law." Author Scott Turow, the keynote speaker, described Mrs. Krug as "an inspiring and spirited leader" and talked about how much he owed to libraries. According to Leonard Kniffel, author of the July 13, 2009 article, Turow also stated that, along with censorship, the decline in reading itself is also a huge threat to the freedom to read.
